TRIO Student Support Services helps students successfully transition to the University of Illinois and graduate. TRIO SSS serves traditionally underrepresented students from low-income, first-generation backgrounds or students with disabilities. Along with fostering a culture of high academic achievement and financial wellness, SSS helps prepare students for their post-baccalaureate destination.

Consistent with campuswide data, SSS annual evaluation data show high rates of persistence, academic standing, graduation, and graduate school enrollment. For more information about the TRIO SSS program, visit our website!

Participating students receive the following types of services:

- Academic mentoring and coaching
- Assistance with course selection
- Tutoring and instructional services
- Graduate school preparation
- Financial aid and economic literacy workshops
- Individualized guidance with personal concerns
- Major and career exploration
- Cultural and academic events that build community and promote success
- Advocacy
- Referrals to other campus resources

Data from the 2018-2019 OMSA Annual Report. TRIO SSS is funded by a grant from the U.S. Department of Education.
